

Now I know why we delayed starting our annual Carriers' Outing until yesterday. Did you ever find 21 kids some place in a bus, and you had to get them out until you had the whole crew safely back home again?

Well it's a job that would do credit to the Quartermaster Corps of the United States Army — and adults are dead and buried years before the bus ever raises Hope again on the horizon of the return trip.

Here are a few facts and figures:

The white division of the carriers, 21 strong, left Hope at 6:20 Sunday morning, for Camp Albert Pike, and Shady Lake, in the Ouachita forest, west of Kirby, Ark., and got back home at 6 p. m. The distance was about 100 miles, but you don't measure newsboy trips by distance. You measure 'em by things like this:

100 sandwiches
Four cases of soft drinks
Five dozen bananas
Three ice-boxes

An incredible pile of bathing suits and other baggage (and somebody lost a shoe before it was over). (1st Postscript: In addition to the above list of food the boys ate before they left Hope.

(2nd Postscript: On the return trip the auto at Murfreesboro.

(3rd Postscript: On the return trip, after eating at Murfreesboro, they also ate at a filling station near Nashville.

(4th Postscript: Coming out of the mountains, between Langley and Salem, the bus ran out of gas — and the only reason the bus didn't eat there also was there was nothing left aboard the bus and it was an even seven miles back to Langley or forward to Salem.)

All I can report on is the white division, which Reginald Bearden and I took to the mountains. "Boots" Smith, of our stereotype department, took the negro carriers to Hot Springs, Sunday, and I suppose they gave him a fast workout too.

But everybody got back safe and sound. And for that we are thankful, as the boys were happy ever, what Mr. Palmer and I propose to do at least once a year. Show the home boys a part of Arkansas most of them had never seen. This year it was the remote mountain wilderness of the Ouachita reserve. Next year, well, that's a safe distance away.

Milk Case Is Continued by Court

William (Bill) McClendon's suit contesting the validity of a city ordinance which prevents him selling Borden's milk in Hope was delayed in Hempstead County Court this morning until a complete hearing could be held.

Hope City council is expected to take up the issue at its regular meeting Tuesday night and may repeal the old milk ordinance and pass a new one.

McClendon was arrested here last week and posted $500 bond repeating a ruling by the court. McClendon's attorney James H. Pilkinton asked for and received a temporary injunction against the city of Hope and officials ordering them not to interfere in any way with the plaintiff and his customers in the sale of milk here.

This gives Mr. McClendon the right to sell milk in Hope until the issue is finally decided.

Barkley Takes Time Out to Court Widow

St. Louis, Sept. 5 — (UP) — Vice president Alben W. Barkley took time out from affairs of state today for a lengthy holiday to court Mrs. Barkley in Springfield, Ill., where he is scheduled to unveil a sculpture of Benjamin Franklin.

The 72-year-old "veep" let it be known that he'd probably be widowed around her home town.

But he said definitely that they would be married this trip.

"Any time that I'll be looking you fellows up," he told reporters. "This is just a friendly visit."

On Thursday, Barkley and Mrs. Barkley drive together in the 1946 model car to Springfield, Ill., where he is scheduled to unveil a sculpture of Benjamin Franklin.

Barkley took a circuitous route to get here yesterday from his home at Paducah, Ky. He flew first to Memphis and then here, arriving shortly before sundown.

If he hoped to evade reporters he was out of luck. They were waiting along with Mrs. Barkley and daughter Jane, 14. The "widow" looked smart and pretty in a blue dress, black hat with white trim and white gloves.

They loaded his bags in the trunk of her car then drove through a scenic estate area before going to the Bellefonte Country club for a dinner party with Mrs. Barkley's boss, Washburn Railroad General Counsel Joseph McLean, and St. Louis Attorney Richman and Mrs. Barkley's late husband was McLean's predecessor on the Washburn road.

But Barker, Syracuse D. backfield coach, is the former head basketball coach at Muhlenberg.

WEATHER FORECAST

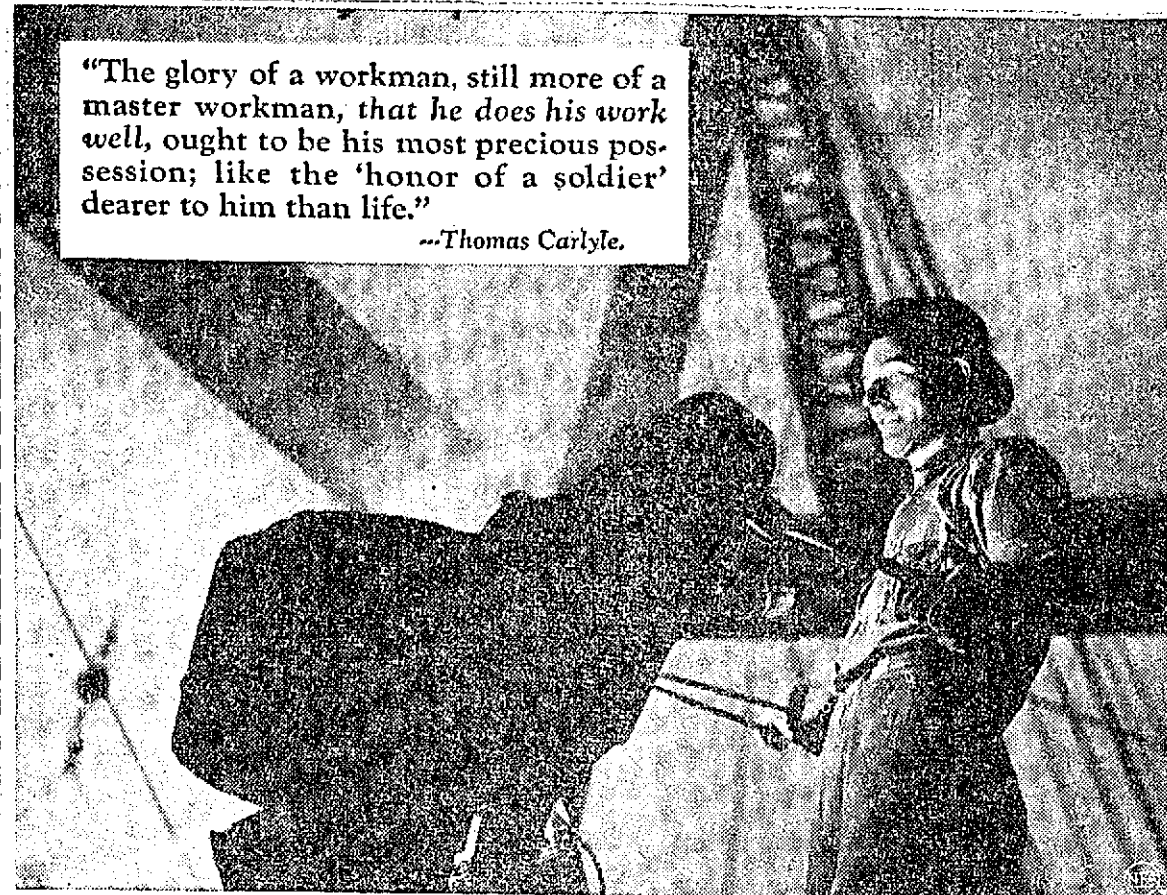

Arkansas: Partly cloudy, scattered showers this afternoon and in northeast portion tonight and Tuesday; no important temperature changes.

Pride of Craftsmanship

"The glory of a workman, still more of a master workman, that he does his work well, ought to be his most precious possession; like the 'honor of a soldier' dearer to him than life."

Spy Hunters to Be Hit By Economy Drive

Washington, Sept. 5 — (UP) — The congressional economy drive is about to hit the spy-hunting house un-American activities committee, it was learned today.

A source close to the controversial group said that a staff "shakeup" is in prospect. He claimed it would result in the loss of at least one investigator and "several" other employees.

The committee has been authorized by the house to spend $200,000 for its investigations during this congress. But some members would like to turn back as much as $50,000 into the legislative treasury.

One member told reporters a few days ago that the committee's activities have been cut down so far under the Democratic regime "that we might as well lay off the whole thing."

"It won't be long before we become known as the house inactivities committee," he said. "And the way things are going at present, that name would certainly be justified."

The committee, in addition to its clerical staff, employs at least seven investigators headed by Louis J. Russell, former FBI agent. Most of them have worked for the group in both Republican and Democratic congresses.

But some members are known to feel that there isn't enough work being done at present to justify such a large staff. They claim that the committee's office "is a bunch of people who are just sitting around and waiting for something to happen."

"Furthermore, their morale is shot because they have nothing to do and can't work towards a program," one member said. "We made the mistake of starting them off too high and now we can't send them any higher."

Veterans Stone Robeson Gang, Many Injured

Peekskill, N. Y., Sept. 5 — (AP) — Scores of people were injured and windows in hundreds of automobiles were shattered last night as a throng departing from a Paul Robeson concert ran into a barrage of rocks.

At least eight autos and an empty bus were overturned, and an auto was set afire as demonstrators against the left wing Negro singer got beyond the control of almost 1,000 law enforcement officers.

Glass splinters were so thick on some spots of roads that it looked as if a sheet storm had hit the Peekskill county suburb.

Five persons were treated at hospitals, but no serious injuries were reported. About two score others were taken into temporary protective custody.

The barrage of stones, bottles and other missiles was fired by known and unknown anti-leftists scattered along three roads up to distances of five miles.

Many of the bus and auto passengers were women and children. The officers — including about 250 state troopers mobilized from DeWitt's orders — prevented any serious violence at the concert. A helicopter was in contact with police radio posts in the area but they were unable to cope with the attack that flared with increasing intensity from town to town as the concert-goers headed home.

The concert — on an abandoned golf course — was held on mile from the scene of a riot which previous Saturday. Eight persons were hospitalized then when anti-leftists held a similar demonstration.

Gov. Dewey, in ordering all available state police into the area yesterday, called the concert gathering "pro-communist." He declared, however, that the "rights of free speech and of assembly are guaranteed to all, regardless of political beliefs."

"These rights," Dewey said, "must be respected, however hateful the views of some of those who abuse them."

In addition to the strong guard of state troopers, police of several municipalities and special deputies, Robeson was escorted by a concert by determined supporters.

Pitting his strong baritone against an ear-splitting clamor set up by 4,000 parading war veterans and other fans sang several numbers over loudspeakers for an audience of 10,000.

The singer — without close contact with the demonstrators — then was whisked away in an automobile to New York City.

Easy to Play New Card Game Canasta
By William E. McKenney
After completing the draw in four-handed Canasta, a player may meld if he is able and willing to do so. (He must meld if he draws the up-card of the pack.) Sequences are not melded in Canasta, only cards of the same rank; for example, three or more aces or three or more sixes. Suits and sequences play not part in Canasta.

The initial legal meld of a side must conform to the minimum requirements outlined in the scoring table.

After an initial legal meld has been made a player in his proper turn may make any additional melds or add cards to meld previously made by his side.

A meld of three or more cards always must have at least two natural cards, and not more than three wild cards.

Wild cards: The four jokers and the eight deuces are wild. A joker or a deuce may be used to help you to lay down a meld. The value of a joker or a deuce does not change to the value of the card for which it is used. For example, if you put down two sevens and a joker, the joker counts 50 points, and not 5 points as each of the other sevens does.

Once a wild card is melded it cannot be taken back into the hand by the substitution of a natural card. In other words, there is no trading for a wild card.

Wild cards may be used to make a meld or to add to a meld previously made. Any number of wild cards may be added to a completed Canasta, but no other meld may contain more than three wild cards. Deuces and jokers cannot be melded by themselves.

Melding out: A player melds out when he can legally get rid of the last card in his hand, either by discarding it, or making a meld, or playing it to a meld for his side.

Concealed hand: An extra bonus of 100 points is given to a player who melds out with a concealed hand. To earn this bonus, he must

Labor Day Was Started Back in 1882

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, Sept. 5 — (AP) — This is Labor day but how did it get here?

It was started in this country in 1882 by the Knights of Labor, of which more in detail later.

The knights were the first huge labor organization in America and in 1882, 1883, and 1884, they paraded in New York City on the first Monday in September.

In 1884 the knights adopted a resolution that the first Monday in September every year should be set aside as Labor day.

Then began efforts to have it made a holiday. Various other labor organizations joined in the idea.

The first state to pass a law recognizing the day was Oregon, which did so Feb. 21, 1887. This was followed by similar laws in New York, New Jersey and Colorado.

And congress made it a legal holiday in the United States by mold all of his cards in one turn, not having previously melded any of his cards, nor can he play any of his cards on a meld previously made by his partner.

A concealed hand of course may not contain any red treys; they must be placed face up on the table at the player's first opportunity to play, and a card drawn from the stock pile to replace each red trey placed on the table.

To go out with a concealed hand, either the player's partner must have previously melded a Canasta, or the concealed hand must contain a Canasta.

Four-handed... play concluded.

The Story: Gaynel Teare has chosen Fritz Freyman, a young newspaperman, in preference to Barry Bainbridge, a young Detroit millionaire, after both have proposed marriage. She tells herself, however, that she is doing this for Fritz, even with his new job with a syndicate, could hardly do more than support her. And Gaynel is the breadwinner for her family consisting of her mother, brother and sister. But Fritz says they'll work it out. Gaynel's family can get along on less and Gaynel's brother can contribute some to the support of the family, although he seldom has held a job long in the past. Fritz offers to help Gaynel help her family, but Gaynel says she'll do it herself.

Nothing that's worth having is easy and it was not going to be easy to tell Barry that her love was not for him, that she loved someone else. Gaynel would rather have cut off her right hand than hurt him so.

She realized with a little guilty quiver, that she had told Fritz how much she owed Barry. In actual cash, besides in so many intangible ways. She had a suspicion that Fritz would not relish the idea of her being in debt to Barry. Fritz's illness, she would think she should have managed to meet those obligations in some other manner, as perhaps she should; though she did not see just what other means she could have taken. She was paying Barry back. She must tell him about Fritz at the first opportunity.

The opportunity to present itself was when Barry drove her to Ann Arbor to the football game between Michigan and Ohio State.

Gaynel sported two big yellow chrysanthemums — from Barry, of course; Barry never forgot flowers. Her cheeks were whipped to a most becoming flush from the wind. It was impossible not to feel terribly happy and light-hearted, though she knew this was the day when she must tell Barry about Fritz.

Barry broke the game was over, when the exultation of victory, or the acceptance of well-braved defeat, would twirl this radiance to a softer mood. Yes, she would tell Barry on the way home.

"By the way," Barry broke the silence, "I found out about Denny's new heart-throb — as a matter of fact I met the lady. Made a point to do so. You'll be pleased to hear that she is really a most acceptable person. Exceptional, might be a better term."

"I'm not sure whether I should be pleased or not," Gaynel considered. "It all depends, I guess, on what you mean by exceptional."

"Madeline Day, this particular lady's name, would be a lady under any circumstances."

"Even in a divorce court — twice?" She supposed she was being caustic, but she believed she would have preferred someone not quite so sure of herself for Denny as this lady sounded.

Barry said, "I found out about that too. The first wasn't a divorce, her husband died. The second was most unfortunate. Clinton Day was a rascal. No one could blame a woman for being unable to live with him."

Gaynel said, "I'm not blaming anyone. Unless Denny really loses his head. Which he shows every sign of doing at present. I never knew him to remain faithful to one love so long. And he's actually sticking to his new job with surprising doggedness — for him."

"You should be pleased with that, at least. You remember I promised I wouldn't place Denny in this job until he had given his word to stick. I felt sure all he needed was the proper incentive."

"I know. I am pleased he's making good. Did you know he got a raise last week? But I'm not sure that I consider Mrs. Day the 'proper incentive.' Certainly I wouldn't be pleased if Denny got it into his handsome head that he'd like to be her third matrimonial experiment." Denny might not be any too pleased when he learned that she was going to marry Fritz, instead of Barry. But of course that was different.

Barry said, "Mrs. Day may have something to say about that. I think you should meet her."

"Good heavens, Barry," anyone

DOROTHY DIX Wife Hunter

Dear Miss Dix: I am a young man of the garden variety, making a fair income and able to give a wife the ordinary comforts of life. I want to marry, but I don't want one of the kind of girl that makes a wife with the martyr complex who appears to regard themselves as victims and consider that to keep house and have children entitles them to public sympathy. I want my wife to feel glad that she married me, to glory in making a home for me and to feel that marriage is a worthwhile career. Where shall I go to look for such a girl, and how can I be sure of having a happy home?

RALPH
Answer: Oh, you will have no difficulty in finding the kind of girl if you really want her. She probably lives just around the corner from you, or you have worked with her for five years in an office, but you have overlooked her because she didn't have on as much lipstick, or as smart clothes as some of the other girls. Or she wasn't as peachy a dancer. Or didn't have as keen a line.

The trouble with you men who complain that you can't find good wives is that you hunt for them in the wrong places. In night clubs. And at cocktail parties. And you expect to find them looking like a million dollars, and never think of seeking them at home helping mother with the children or at study clubs trying to improve their minds, or by their own parlor lamps reading good books.

Believe me, son, there are just as many domestic girls now as there ever were, girls who would make just the kind of wife your mother is, girls who long for homes and husbands and babies. I have often thought that it must be very disappointing and humiliating to a man for his wife to go about bemoaning her fate, and lamenting over how much better off she would have been if she had stayed single. Sometimes this is the woman's fault. She is just a born whiner and complainer, and would have thought she was as ill-used by fate if she had had to support herself as she is in having a man for a meal ticket.

Somehow, we have the idea that making a happy home is exclusively a woman's job, but my observation has been that the man has more influence on family morale than the wife. In each of the really happy homes that I have ever known, there was a man at the head who was cheerful and strong and wise and tender, and who put as much thought on making a success of his marriage as of his business.

So if you want a happy home, do your part toward making it. If you want your wife to be a good manager, help her with her budget. If you want her to be a good cook, praise the meals she sets before you. And if you want her to glory in her job as wife and mother, make it worth while by your appreciation.

DOROTHY DIX
Dear Dorothy Dix: What is all this hokey about woman's new deal in matrimony? Must the man still be older than his wife? I am thinking about couple who are completely in love. She is a widow nearly thirteen years older than the man and possesses a modest income, while he has nothing. They are so congenial the difference in their age seems to be nothing, but community and family gossip wrecked this love affair. The young man couldn't stand the gaff, and now is taking comfort

Good Fishing Over Most of Arkansas

Little Rock, Sept. 5 — (UP) — Arkansas fishermen should enjoy good fishing conditions for the remainder of the season, according to a prediction today by the state game and fish commission.

The good conditions, if they prevail, will compensate in a measure for generally poor catches during the early part of the year.

A weekend report by the commission said that waters were good in most of the state. Good reports were indicated from Horse-shoe lake in Crittenden county, Old River, Midway, Bear creek and Storm Creek lakes and Whiskey chute. Waters in the Marked Tree floodway were muddy.

Streams and lakes in the northern part of the state are reported good. Lake Norfolk, White river and Buffalo river are good, as are King, Illinois and Osage rivers. Smaller streams are reported in the best condition this year.

Western and central Arkansas report most streams clear and the water good. In some of the smaller streams, however, anglers had difficulty because the water is too clear for the time of year.

Cincinnati outfielder Denny Litchfield spends his time during the baseball off-season as a school teacher.

Little Rock opened the game with two runs and added single runs in the fourth and fifth.

Birmingham's 3-2 defeat by Memphis yesterday and Nashville's twin triumph over New Orleans but the same scores, 3-2 and 3-2, put the defending champions Nashville Vols in an excellent spot to defend successfully.
